LEGISLATURE READY FOR BUSINESS

Organization Effected by Adoption of Joint Rules Making Equal Division on Committees

COMMITTEES WILL BE ANNOUNCED TOMORROW

Progressives Will Have to Take Chances For Committee Places But May Be Given Representation on Woman's Suffrage Committee—Trip to Philadelphia For a Special Committee Voted—Purcell's Sunday Bill Introduced.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 21.—The legislature met today at the capitol with the session set in motion today. The wheels will continue to move, probably turning more hours per week than in previous sessions until the constitutional break is jammed down on them on June 4th when the session will close by adjournment.

The body was formally organized by adoption of joint rules amended so that the democrats get equal representation on the joint committees; very little could be done without rules and the alternative of joint rules was separate rules in each branch under which separate committees would be appointed. This would mean two committees with identical duties such as are in use in congress and the procedure that would follow in consideration of measures in committee might mean great inconvenience to the citizens of the state.

Slit Show for Progressives.
To amend the joint rules in the way which was done in the case of the legislators to have been something not attempted in one, possibly two generations. The result is to place as far as possible the two political parties on a parity. The handful of progressives in the house will have to take their chances though it is thought they will be given places on the woman's suffrage committee.

The republicans, after their caucus which upheld by a narrow margin the report of Representative Henry, of the special committee which drew up the resolution for the changes in rules, seemed freely that many of them were anxious to get down to business and were willing to be fair towards the democrats. In the caucus Representative Hall had pointed out that if a United States senator had to teach brass that is what would show that the democrats were in control.

Hall Argues for Fair Deal.
He argued for support of the report and a fair deal to the democrats. Mr. Hall went on in the caucus and while the republicans were talking he said members therein to adhere to action, the usual way is to recommend that the caucus be placed as far as possible by the members individually. This was done for when the report went into the house there were many dissenting voices. In the senate the republicans having acquiesced as a minority party to the report, the democrats through their quickness. After the joint rules as amended had been adopted the democrats were happy over the victory they had won.

Terms of the Compromise.
The committees will now be selected. Speaker Wolcott will go to a reception at the capitol and will be accompanied by a large number of democrats. The committees will be named on Thursday. In brief the compromise is as follows: The democrats will be made up of three senators and nine representatives of which five representatives shall be democrats and four republicans. Democratic house members are to be selected from a list submitted by the democrats and republican members from a list submitted by the republicans. The democrats will be selected from a list submitted by the democrats and republican members from a list submitted by the republicans. The democrats will be selected from a list submitted by the democrats and republican members from a list submitted by the republicans.

Memorials to Chief Justice Hall.
The chairmanships of the important committees are to go to the democrats and with the government, probably Representative Henry. Mr. Thomas is likely to be second member of the committee.

The question of rules disposed of some business came into both branches but an immense amount was held back until the session was over in order to save time. The house and senate both adjourned at five o'clock.

Democratic Senators Confused.
It is not often so that a session so early settled down to business as to hold afternoon sessions. The democrats did this and received some success. The democrats did this and received some success. The democrats did this and received some success. The democrats did this and received some success. The democrats did this and received some success.

Trip to Philadelphia for Committee.
Both branches passed a resolution providing for a committee to go to a conference in Philadelphia to arrange for observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg next July. When the resolution was put into force, the democrats objected to the form of the resolution as it gives to the committee reimbursement for actual expenses. Senator Landers pointed out that this matter came with Governor Baldwin's recommendation which for years has been a member of the party which went before the state pleading for endorsement because it would put into force economies, recommends the expenditure it could not be far wrong. The resolution then went forward with concurrence with the house.

County Meetings Held.
In the afternoon the county meetings were held as provided by statute. All were quickly over except in the New Haven county meeting in which there was considerable interest. Incidentally the democrats obtained delegation of thirty men representing various labor interests made a earnest plea for the appointment of a democrat to fill the state commission of labor now held by a republican.

John T. Cosgrove, a democrat and was the one to succeed Colonel Lewis T. Bryant, the present incumbent, who was appointed by a republican governor.

The president-elect told the delegation that labor should be represented in the government by one who would be exactly the opposite of the reason to displace Colonel Bryant, who has performed his duties faithfully and efficiently.

The colloquy took place in the big room just outside of the governor's office. The delegation, which was headed by the late Senator John T. Cosgrove, the present incumbent, was made up of thirty men representing various labor interests.

"Oh, class opposition does not affect me one way or the other," quickly interrupted the governor.

Later in the day another delegation of men appeared in Mr. Bryant's behalf.
